WHERE'S THE FUCKING ANGRY BRIGADE?

/No I don't mean our comrades from Stoke Newington in the 1970's but the relatives and friends of the 50,000 who have died from Covid-19 and often due directly to cackhanded and woeful government policies.

Where are people shouting at Tory politicians, forming action groups or at least raging to the cameras. But no – they have been kept well offstage – restricted to grief.

Grenfell Tower was another example where the SWP and local community leaders went for a dignified presence and march once a month – like clapping – and virtually no anger directed at Kensington Council. And still they come for the public inquiry year 3 just as they will for Covid 19.

Enough is enough! The care home killing fields etc etc fuck another inquiry – we know the outcome now. Huge pay days for law firms.

IT'S TIME TO SHOW SOME FUCKING ANGER.

What is to be done?

Class War committed itself to a big action against the Tories as soon as lockdown ended. We said on the Friday after lockdown over, so as not to jeopardise the joys of pubs reopening.

So now it looks like some time in July. We are asking you what form of action. We are certainly not going to march from Portland Place to Whitehall as all the SWP organised marches now do, ending with a load of hot air from Owen Jones, Len McCluskey etc etc.

We'd like some innovative suggestions, not same old same old. We are thinking evenings as success of Fuck Parades, but forward ever backward never. So let's be 'aving yer thoughts comrades.

DON'T MOURN. ORGANISE.

BRITAIN REBELS AGAINST THE RULING CLASS

Early this week Class War Daily wrote about teachers and parents rebelling against the government wanting primary schools to reopen on June 1st. Now everyone is rebelling. 1,500 schools in England demand they stay shut, schools in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland refuse to play ball with Johnson's demands. The government's own scientists rebelled when Tory minister Therese Coffey claimed that if the Tories had done anything wrong in their handling of the pandemic it was because the scientific advice has been shit. Meanwhile the workers at Dyson refused to go back to work in the week that their top boss, James Dyson, was named as Britain's richest wanker.

What a turnaround! On schools the government is now in the position of having to say that they can't reopen because their track and tracing plans aren't quite ready. They must think the people are not paying attention. Firstly, their plans for reopening were just plain dangerous and secondly their plans on tracking and tracing the virus have been crap for months! Two shit policies don't make one good one.

Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland are going their own way and proving that Boris Johnson is merely the Prime Minister of England. Even then, the great schools rebellion makes him the PM of no one. Teachers are right to be refusing to go back and parents are right for keeping their kids and everyone safe.

The scientists that have been guiding the government throughout the last few months were hung out to dry by ministers this week but it quickly became apparent that it was ministers who are to blame for bad decisions. Scientists and other advisers provide the government with options. It is from these options that the ministers decide policies. It is clear that the government has chosen unwisely at every opportunity. The UK now has over 55,000 virus related deaths in what can only be seen as criminal negligence. If justice is ever served it will be the ministers in jail, not the scientists. Let's see the briefing documents, the emails and the minutes. What's the betting some junior civil servant is being paid to do a lot of shredding?

Then there's Dyson. Several attempts were made over the last week by the executives at the company to get people back to work but the workers have said NO! Good on 'em. In the same week that James Dyson was announced as the UK's richest person, the people that have done the work are refusing to die for it. This kind of action is the bringing of a new society. We all keep hearing how things are going to change. Well they will if we all carry on rebelling against government and against the rich bastards taking our work and stealing the profit.

UP THE ANTE

2.1 million claiming U.C. and other benefits, then in June/July 700,000 kids leave school and tens of thousands of collage and university students. BOOM, 3 million on the dole.

This is an incredible number, add further mass redundancy's and equate this so called available Job's. CRISIS! your fucking right there.

For a start, will this situation give employer's the upper hand in the Real Class War? Will the same old bog standard unions suddenly recruit mass membership, the use their impotent, stagnant turgid representation, and lead further generations up the fucking garden path?

Lets be clear here comrades, as with other Crisis in other Era's, The only way for real societal change, it must be a change

Forced by our class, by all and any means nessecary , sweeping away the mouldy old institutions.

The ante must be upped here, activists must learn to agitate within the ranks of the unemployed. This is not an new tactic, but given the current practice of digital by default, signing on is Not mass lines outside Jokecentres, We must find way's to attract the attention of workers, who are forced onto the breadline and worse, into real poverty.

The Clap for the NHS and other frontline workers could easily turned into anger at the uselessness of the political elite.

There will be massive change in the near future, No doubt about that, and we must agitate within our class, to get the spirit of RISE UP AND RESIST, and Force that Fucking Change.

Jedidiah Shine.

Letter to the editor...

Dear Editor

The only Ring of Steel this government erected was around Boris the Body-bag Johnson. You see and hear him flapping his gums for half an hour on a Wednesday - after all there is fuck all happening - and then just like a Genie POOF! back in the bottle you go! Oh wait: two and a half weeks holiday now and don't forget at the end of July closed until September! And he still has to fit in paternity leave! Remember people: use common sense out there! oh wait millions voted for this wankstain!!

Yours

Ian Whaley
